

Biography

Brenda Campbell Johnson

Communications Director

Alaska Conference of Seventh-day Adventists

Brenda Campbell Johnson is a life-long Alaska resident responsible for the communication department covering news stories, social media, advertising, graphic design, and more. Brenda has worked at the Alaska Conference since 2005 as a receptionist and administrative support for the Education department. She continues to support education for the conference in addition to serving as the Communications Director, a role she assumed in 2019. She shares, "I enjoy the challenge of supporting the ministries of the conference in a professional and appealing way that fosters engagement across platforms and audiences."

Brenda holds a Bachelor of Business Administration in Management degree from the University of Alaska Anchorage. She and her husband of 35+ years, Terry, enjoy fishing and camping across Alaska. She is the mother of two daughters, Kiersten & Maiya; son (in-law), Jeromy; and "nana" to grandchildren Lilian and Roman. Her other interests include travel, reading and shopping!
